Chapin Falls, Ohio
December 17, 1925.

Mr. Stanley Pulliam Shugart,

Dear Sir:

Your letter reached me yesterday and we all were much interested in learning its contents, we are greatly pleased to hear from you and we greatly appreciate hearing from you.

I regret being unable just now to send you the information you asked for, but the history of the Pulliam name is English, so I am sure of it there is some history of the name in England.

It was left in Ansonville, N.C. with my daughter Mrs. Pulliam, along with a lot of other things of her and my wife, and she (Mrs. Pulliam) has been in many places and another town or two from time to time. She promised to send it to me and sent me a copy of the letter and sent it to me in a box, but she has been rather ill, and when she gets well will send me a copy.

It is hard to say what valuable to any questions of genealogy or kindred, but it is extremely interesting and shows the kind of people whose names are often found in places of importance in the centuries past.

The name appears in the records in several different forms and spellings - Pulliam - Pullan - Pullen - Pullayn - and others.

Some very interesting facts I remember are that before the University of Oxford was established as such, a man of my father’s name Robert Pullum, (or it appears in the Encyclopaedia Britannica Robert Puller) was the head master of a large school for boys, where the University now stands, and that for several centuries there stood on the campus of the University a magnificent tree that was known all over England as the William Oat (or maybe it was an Eme) instead of an Oat)
It appears from the record, all of which are authentically based on known authorities, cited in the document itself and that there have been Bishops of both the English Church and the Catholic or Roman Church of our name, with many of the name mentioned as eminent in the different useful sciences, Discoverers, Explorers, Navigators, Soldiers,

I am sure your people and mine come from the same ancestry, but the information I have does not show it clearly ancestry.
My father was of the Roadman family of Va. No grant.
My mother was of the Roadman family of Va. No grant.
My father was of the Roadman family of Va. No grant.
On the side of my father we are related to the Norman Norman. Williams and others well known Virginia families.
William P. Williams (the 7th of that name) who was a son of Parnell Williams (the 3rd of that name) who was a son of John P. Williams, moved to West Virginia, and his Grandson there are numerous, and embrace many other descendants there are numerous, and embrace many other decendants there are numerous, and embrace many other decendants there are numerous, and embrace many other decendants there are numerous, and embrace many other
On one near at home there was on my father side
Rev. James M. Horner, Bishop of the Asheville Diocese of N. C.

John Sharp Williams long in the U. S. Senate from Mississippi is also a related
Mississippi is also a related
Mississippi is also a related
Mississippi is also a related

If you do come out this way look us up, and let us get acquainted.

Your Very Truly,

Lawrence Williams

We are 14 miles East of Cleveland on a forest road.